

WHERE SEA MEETS LAND

An evening of poetry - Thursday 16th May at St Just Library

Two poets who have a strong empathy with the Cornish sea and coastline meet up for an entertaining evening of spoken word about the Cornish land and sea.

Angela Stoner is a poet and storyteller, who has lived in Cornwall for twenty year. Her storytelling, poetry and published work have been inspired by Cornish landscape and seascape. She loves its stories and is interested in how the human and elemental react. Angela regularly performs her work at festivals and in other contexts and has three published books, Once in a Blue Moon, Weight and Flight, and The Mazemaker's Daughters.

Des Hannigan is a travel writer and journalist who worked for thirty years for publishers such as Lonely Planet and AA Publishing. Before this, he fished out of Newlyn for fifteen years. He has been both author and editor of definitive rock-climbing guides to the Cornish cliffs. He draws on his experiences at sea and on the cliffs in prose and verse in his book, The Almost Island, and in its sequel, The Long Deep, due out in July this year.

Are you a poet? Bring along one of your poems to put into a hat. Three will be drawn to be read to the audience at the end of the evening.

Doors open 7pm. The event starts at 7.30pm. Refreshments provided Free admission, with donations welcome. Places limited, so come early to be sure to get in.
